

25th Annual Meeting of the North American Sartre Society

in conjunction with

Diverse Lineages of Existentialism II
Washington, D.C. June 3-5, 2019

Call for Papers

The 25th meeting of the North American Sartre Society (NASS) will be held as part of the 2019 Diverse Lineages of Existentialism II (DLE II) meeting, taking place in Washington, D.C. June 3-5, 2019 at George Washington University.

We invite panels and papers that “diversify our understanding of what existentialism has been and can be,” and encourage submissions related to the theme of “Diversity and Existentialism.” We encourage participants to reflect on motifs such as: the intertextual connections between Sartre and other existentialists such as Beauvoir, Fanon, and/or Merleau-Ponty; the diversity of existential philosophers today, whether racial, gender, ethnic, cultural, religious or other; and the diversity of approaches under the umbrella of existentialism, including philosophical, literary, sociological, historical, and creative perspectives. Presentations in all areas of Sartre Studies are encouraged.

Deadline: We invite abstracts of 300-500 words. Proposals for papers (reading time 20 minutes) or panels may be submitted in English, French or Spanish. Submission deadline is January 31st, 2019. To submit an abstract, click here: <https://goo.gl/forms/vtUj250AOBzIQpw1>

About NASS: The North American Sartre Society promotes interdisciplinary work on existentialism and contemporary culture. We encourage pluralistic approaches to Sartre Studies, including work that engages Simone de Beauvoir, Maurice Merleau-Ponty, Frantz Fanon, Richard Wright and other existentialists. We support the exploration of Sartrean dimensions of philosophy, literature, theater, aesthetics, psychology, politics, intellectual history, art, and/or music.
